

Backcountry Camping

Backcountry camping would be provided in select areas along the base of the rock formations in the Middle Camp and Rocks Camp. These primitive campsites would provide a remote overnight camping experience away from the more active areas of the site. All of these sites would be spaced to provide privacy and positioned to capture the best views. Each campsite, identified by a marker, would provide an area to pitch a small tent. A comfort station with restrooms would be provided within walking distance to these sites. Open fires would not be allowed at any of these locations. Parking would be concentrated in a few select areas at a distance and out of site from campers. zAdditional backcountry sites may be added in other supporting zones of Staunton Park as a low-impact use.
